

Kendal Division Centenary Fun Day

Guide and Brownie units from across Kendal and Natland came together on Saturday 19th June 2010 at Stramongate School to celebrate 100 years of Guiding.

Semaphore signalled the start of Guiding in 1910.

Outdoor cooking reminded everyone that the first World Camp was held in 1924. Learning to light a fire can be good fun.

Eggy bread, as in the past, proved popular.

The 1930's was an era of Guiding spreading around the world and the opening of the first World Centre in Switzerland. Our Chalet was commemorated by the making Swiss flag brooches.

In the 40's Guiding supported the war effort in many ways but all girls learnt 1st Aid. So some modern, mock wounds were treated enthusiastically.

The 1950's was a time for celebration and much enjoyment was gained from learning the hand jive and the jive dance.

The Sixties heralded an era of protests and music –the girls wholeheartedly sang some iconic songs of that time.

The Space Age of the Seventies was remembered with the playing of team games including the use of Space Hoppers.

!980s fashion is memorable - day-glow paints were liberally used to decorate t-shirts.

Film footage and games brought home the opportunities that girls can take to widen their knowledge as well as to help Guiding projects around the world.

Lastly the modern member had the chance to make beauty products from natural materials.

Nadine Scott, Division Commissioner for Kendal, said, "The day was a huge achievement thanks to a group of Guiding leaders and members of the Kendal Trefoil Guild working together. They put a lot of effort into organising the activities and their energy and enthusiasm ensured that the one hundred and thirty-five girls had a happy and positive experience. We are extremely grateful to Stramongate Primary School for their interest and support in the running of this fun day."
